This form is evidence of an agreement between two parties [developer & client] regarding the development of a script for Garry's Mod.

Once signed by both parties this form becomes legally binding and may be used as evidence in court in the United States of America & United Kingdom.

I [developer] agree to produce a script for the game Garry's Mod which is completed to the client's satisfaction. I will mould this script into exactly what my client wants, and if I am unable to be this precise I will make it known to my client. My own opinions and wishes will be considered by my client, but do not have to be included when designing this script. My client's opinion in this matter is strictly the only valid opinion.

I [developer] reserve the right to abandon the creation of this script at any point, but I must give my client a 5 day warning prior to the cancellation so that there is time to organise payment returns. If I decide to abandon the project, all money no matter how it was received must be returned by no later than one month to the client.

To create the script, I [developer] agree not to use stolen or confidential material without permission, and request the 1998 Data Protection act. I also understand and agree that my client can abandon the project and agreement at any time, and any money sent to me must be returned to my client by one month.
