One last message for the bond election stuff: tonight and tomorrow there will be opportunities for y'all to make phone calls to Eanes parents in support of the bond. Both days will be from 6-8. Tonight it's at 1305 Brians Meadow Cove and tomorrow 115 Wild Basin Rd., Suite 106. The pay is 40$. Thanks!

Viraj Mehta It's not perfect. But, the new school does a couple things:

Moves the Cuernavaca kids to a school that's actually near where they live....

Brandon McKee I never said it's a bad thing what it does. I was implying that you don't know what you're talking about and also the fact that it could cost between $3600 per family in a $500k house and $10800 for a family in a $1.5m house.

You are promoting things that you don't know the entire situation, and you also aren't even old enough to vote.

Viraj Mehta To be clear, the bond is gonna cost $120/year for a house of $500000.

And are you claiming that because I was born in November I lack the intellectual faculties to understand something like this?

4 hrs · Edited · Unlike · 12

Brandon McKee I just said that. You also specifically stated that you don't know how long you have to pay it for.

You're basically saying "Here I'll sell you a car for only $120 /yr!" I asked for how long do I have to pay $120 a year and you say you don't know.... See More

Brandon McKee No it didn't. This is the whole reason I commented on the post in the first place. He's trying to make people think it's only $120

And just for fun lets throw in the fact that it isn't even his wallet that it would come out of.... See More

Sam Coppel ^I'm pretty sure Viraj helped write/oversee some provisions of the bond, so it doesn't make any sense to demean him for not knowing enough. Also why can't you have an opinion on something even if you're a few months too young to vote on it? That makes no sense either...

Brandon McKee Because he isn't paying shit and he doesn't know what he is talking about, Sam. That is why.

If he were to openly state how long you pay it and how much it costs, he's welcome to boast his opinion anywhere.

David Love Brandon McKee it's only roughly $11 dollars extra a month in taxes in a district that can well afford the raise regardless of how long it lasts. Please don't attempt patronize to the smartest kid at Westlake

David Love Brandon $3600 over 30 year is nothing. Are you even paying property taxes yourself? If not there's no difference between you and V

Brandon McKee Okay David, hand over the $3600

Also, since you wanted to join in on the fun so bad, get me a list or percentage of just how many houses in Eanes are $500k and I would also like the percentages of above and below $500k, because I guarantee you, a lot of them are way more than $500k

3 hrs · Edited · Unlike · 1

David Love I'll hand them over... In monthly payments over the next 30 years. Why don't you do that? I'm not the one needing convincing.

3 hrs · Unlike · 1

Brandon McKee Well let's not get ahead of ourselves David, we have to see how much your house is worth first.

Walker Payne how can you even argue about this? check it out: $3600 (total estimated cost of the bond over 30 years per house valued at $500,000) - $1586 (arbitrary number of similar importance) = $2014

1 hr · Unlike · 10

Viraj Mehta It's definitely more misleading to say that this costs $3600. When you win a $5000000 lottery, it's paid in installments over like 30 years. That's not the same as $5000000 cash. It's much more relevant to say what the cost is per year, because that's ... See More

Isaiah Apfel Walker Payne you did it wrong. If you take 3600, divide by 12 (the number of letters in Brandon's name), multiply by 30 (years to pay for bond), dividing that by 12 again, then subtracting 84, you get 666.

Matt Probst Oh shit I'm stepping in now. Regardless of actual cost or even content of the bond, Brandon's argument is valid in that whether it's $500 per household or $500,000 per household, we won't be paying one cent of that. So of course it's easy to tell a bun... See More

Nishiki Maredia okay if you live in a house worth $500000 you can afford to pay $10/month for a school that's done so much for it's kids. We get a really good education at Westlake and they're just trying to improve it even more. Also people get a frick ton of scholarship money because they go to Westlake
